

2020-2021 Fellowships at The Metropolitan Museum of Art

The Metropolitan Museum of Art welcomes applications from scholars of the history of art and visual culture, archaeology, conservation and related sciences, as well as those in other disciplines whose projects relate to objects in The Met's collection. The tremendous diversity of fellows' projects reflects the historic and geographic diversity of the Museum's collection. The community of fellows becomes immersed in the intellectual life of the Museum and takes part in a robust program of colloquia, roundtable seminars, research-sharing workshops, behind-the-scenes tours of exhibitions, conversations with Museum staff, and visits to the curatorial and conservation departments. Fellows form long-lasting professional relationships as they discuss research questions, look closely at objects, and share the experience of living in New York City.

Applications for the 2020–2021 season are open. Please visit <http://www.metmuseum.org/fellowships> for more information. Questions may be sent to Academic.Programs@metmuseum.org.

The Met welcomes fellowship applications from scholars of the history of art and visual culture, archaeology, conservation, and related sciences, as well as from those in other disciplines whose projects relate to objects in the Museum's collection.

Fellows are immersed in the life of The Met and—in addition to working on their projects—take part in a robust program of colloquia, roundtable seminars, research-sharing workshops, conversations with senior Museum staff, and behind-the-scenes tours of the collection and exhibitions. Join this unique community of scholars at The Met and form long-lasting professional relationships.

Apply today. For more information, visit
